Supporting a Better Tomorrow...Today

A Guide to Public Mental Health Resources

Mississippi Department of Mental Health

DMH licenses the 15 CMHC providers which operate as private non-profits under the supervision of regional commissions appointed by county boards of supervisors comprising their respective service areas.

MISSION

Supporting a better tomorrow by making a difference in the lives of Mississippians with mental illness, substance abuse problems and intellectual/developmental disabilities one person at a time.

VISION

We envision a better tomorrow where the lives of Mississippians are enriched through a public mental health system that promotes excellence in the provision of services and supports.

WHAT IS MENTAL ILLNESS?

Mental illness is a medical disease which affects the brain causing abnormal changes in a person's thinking, feeling and behavior. The facilities of the Mississippi State Department of Mental Health primarily treat serious mental illnesses such as schizophrenia, bipolar disorder and major depression.

HOW DO I GET HELP?

Many mental disorders and illnesses can be successfully treated without an individual having to go to a hospital. Other individuals may need hospitalization. Contact your local community mental health center, and staff will explain the treatment possibilities there. An assessment will occur and a determination will be made if mental health services would be helpful, such as medication, individual and/or family therapy, psychosocial rehabilitation services (therapeutic activities in a day program which can help individuals achieve/maintain as much independence in daily life as possible), residential services, and family or consumer education. If necessary, staff may guide you or the person you are concerned about through the process for hospitalization. This process might include civil commitment to a state psychiatric hospital.

ADMISSION TO MISSISSIPPI'S STATE HOSPITALS

The process for mental health civil commitment for admission to the state hospitals begins with the filing of an affidavit (a legal document) at the Chancery Court. If a pre-evaluation screening at the mental health center suggests a commitment examination is warranted, an examination must be done by either two physicians or by a physician and a licensed, certified psychologist. If they recommend treatment in a hospital, or other setting, the judge will make a decision based on all the evidence presented, if treatment should proceed, and if so, at an inpatient or outpatient facility. When an individual is committed to a state hospital, the required legal documents are sent to that hospital's Admission Office by the Chancery Court. Once these documents are received, an admission date and time are set. The admission will involve a review of hospital documents, questions to obtain general information and an inventory of the individual's personal possessions.

TREATMENT PROGRAM

Like most illnesses, treatment for mental illness typically consists of a combination of medication, education and therapeutic programming. When individuals are admitted to a state hospital, they are oriented to their living environment by staff who review program schedules and activities, and individuals' rights and responsibilities with them. Initial assessments begin within a few hours after admission. They are conducted by members of the treatment team which consists of a doctor, nurses, psychology staff, recreation staff, and a social worker. Based on these assessments, individuals receiving treatment and their treatment team develop a treatment plan within the first week to ten days. The treatment plan describes goals for an individual to accomplish and lists groups, activities and other forms of treatment prescribed by the treatment team. Treatment at the state hospitals helps individuals to live as normal lives as possible in the most independent setting appropriate. Once discharged from a state hospital, most individuals continue treatment through various programs at their local community mental health center or other local programs.
